Genre: Fiction

Men. What do you do when your boss takes all the credit for your work?

When your university colleague obviously is trying to bully you out of his career path? Or when your teenage daughter is seduced by a CEO? Frøydis, Celeste, Ella and Jenna meet each other at an evening course in Latin and discover that they have more in common than a desire to learn a dead language. To put it simply, they are fed up. It's time to act. Through subtle humiliations and comic acts of revenge the ladies deal precise blows to men in power.

Helene Uri has written a devilish, wise and witty book about taking action and doing something about the kind of men who use women as foot stools. In short, the four women decide to become ... bitches.

Bitches was selected Book of the Month (May) in Norway's biggest book club BNB.

Helene Uri (b. 1964) holds a PhD in linguistics and worked for twelve years at the University of Oslo as an Associate Professor before she left to become a full time writer. She has a doctorate in applied linguistics, and continues to write on the subject in newspapers and journals. The time she spent as an academic at the University of Oslo and other educational institutions provided her with a wealth of material upon which she drew to write Norway's first campus novel, The Best Among Us published in 2006. This novel stayed on the National bestseller list for 52 weeks and has become a cult novel, sold in 80, 000 copies. The Righteous followed in 2009, a modern family drama in the wake of Ingmar Bergman, a story about people who hurt each other because they love each other.
