It's 1942. On a small island on the south coast, the war seems far away. Sisters Paula, Matilde, Edit and Milly Olsen have lost their father, and must work every day. In the evenings they read English novels and lose themselves in daydreams. In the neighbouring house, the Didrikson family run a summer hotel, and one day, a couple arrives with their foster son David. He is a Jewish refugee.

One light summer night, David and Paula meet. Afterwards, they meet every night in the old English garden on the island. Until the day little Milly drowns during the big summer excursion. Shortly afterwards, the persecution of the Norwegian Jews begins, and David disappears from Paula's life.

Many years later, Anna Vårø comes into the inheritance from her great-aunt Paula Therese Olsen. Anna starts reading Paula's old diaries and begins talking to those who lived through that time. What made aunt Paula's life turn out the way it did? In her fifth novel, Mirjam Kristensen demonstrates her powers as an exquisite writer of prose and as a luminously clear storyteller.

A magnificent novel with local roots (...)
an irresistible flood of a story.

The Flame Birches / The Sixteen Trees of the Somme

Svøm med dem som drukner

Genre: Fiction
Category: Novel
Publisher: Gyldendal

Pages: 472
ISBN: 9788205421998
English edition available

In 1971, a French-Norwegian couple dies when they step on an unexploded grenade at the old battlefields of the Somme. Their three-year old son Edvard is found alone four days later in a town many miles away. The tragedy remains unsolved, and the boy grows up with his grandparents at a desolate farm in Norway. At age 23, Edvard discovers that an unknown person delivered a coffin to the funeral agency many years ago, intended for his grandfather. The coffin is a splendid piece of craftsmanship, made of beautiful flame birch. Edvard believes it to be made by his grand uncle, a master carpenter who bitterly left the family decades ago and worked in France during the 1930s, then disappeared. Strangely, he seems to be connected with the tragic incident in 1971. Edvard sets off to a journey for the truth and to revive his sorrow, and the quest brings him places as diverse as the Shetland Isles, Edinburgh and back to the old battlefields where he once disappeared.

He discovers that his mother was searching for a family heirloom in 1971, «something age old, huge, enough to fill a horse wagon» but what it really was, and if it still exists, is yet to be resolved. He finds that someone else is searching for it, a young woman with an inherited obsession, and Edvard is drawn towards her with both desire and despise.

The Flame Birches is a poetic mystery, a tale of desperate searches, of loss and love, visiting three generations and European historical events, all seen through the clever eye of a rural boy with an intense emotional register, especially for trees and nature, a register that will grow at a painfully quick pace as he unravels the past.

Carl Frode Tiller

The Encircling Trilogy

Innsirkling trilogien

Genre: Fiction
Category: Novel - Trilogy
Publisher: Aschehoug
Year: 2007/2011/2014
Pages: 250/396/350
English edition available

Encircling: David has lost his memory. A newspaper advertisement encourages old and new acquaintances to write him letters, in order to revive his past. The letters create a network of texts where the biography of David, the writers, and other people, are rewritten and put at stake.

The letters were written in 2006, but evolve around the past. This way, false views are created – adolescent dreams, the ambitions of artists and plans for the future. What is a life, how is a life story created under the influence of other people's story?

In Encircling II three new voices write to David, illuminate another phase of his life and encircling him further – while at the same time encircling their own lives. These are intensely glowing and dark stories that ruthlessly display the feebleness of both the close relations and the cultural and social conditions we all are subject to.

In Encircling III we meet Marius, who was accidentally swapped with David at the maternity ward. And with David's story, the last piece falls into place in the picture which Tiller has constructed through three books. The result is naturally the stories about David, but also a series of psychological snapshots of relations between people, portraits of decades and environments, as well as an overarching tale of a modern Norway and the world.

“(...) a talent for storytelling that few of his generation can measure up to.

“(...) an authorship which promises to be the best thing to happen to Norwegian realism in a very long time.”

Dagens Næringsliv

Doubtlessly one of his generation's most important novelists, Carl Frode Tiller is admired for his instantly recognizable, furious prose and his ability to create vivid, complex characters whose fates often seem sealed by their inability to break out of their own destructive behavioural patterns that mark their relationships with other people. Though they might come across as dark and desperate, Tiller succeeds in portraying these tragic characters in a way that arouses the deepest sympathy in the reader. Few has won as many literary prizes for their first three books as Tiller, starting with the sensational debut The Slope in 2001. In 2005 he was named one of the 10 best Norwegian writers under the age of 35. In 2006, The Slope was named among the 25 most important Norwegian novels from the last 25 years in a prestigious contest in the daily Dagbladet.

Seven Days in August

Sju dager i august

Genre: Fiction
Category: Novel
Publisher: Samlaget
Year: 2014
Pages: 200
English edition available

In the course of seven days in August, Sofie and Otto Krohg-Iversen, a married couple, experience a series of trivial mishaps. Each of these incidents in itself is not so serious, but they reveal large and small cracks both in their marriage and the community around them. Is everything falling apart? Or are these mishaps reminders of a greater catastrophe in life?

The novel is set several years into the future. Eight years have passed since the terrorist attack in Oslo and Utøya, a cataclysm that had hit Sofie and Otto badly. At that time they had devised a plan for survival, strategies that have kept them and their relationship going until this week in August. But for how long can the grief process be a joint effort? Is sorrow something that can be shared for only a short period, and thereafter something you have to live alone with? While rainstorms ravage Oslo and conflicts at work accumulate, it becomes clear to Sofie and Otto that their life strategies will have to be re-evaluated and the important questions can no longer be avoided.

Longlisted for 2018 International Dublin Literary Award

«Bildøen writes movingly about grief when life is on hold.»

Bergens Tidende

«Bildøen strives to describe the inner mechanisms of the human mind -- and succeeds.»

Brit Bildøen is one of Norway's most beloved and well acclaimed authors.

Bildøen made her literary debut in 1991 with a collection of poetry Bilde av menn (Pictures of Men). In 1998 she had her literary breakthrough with the novel Tvillingfeber (Twin Fever). For this novel she was nominated to the Brage prize for best novel and awarded the Oslo prize and Nynorsk literary prize. For her third novel, Landfastlykke (Landlocked), 2001, she was awarded the Melsom Prize and Sigmund Skard-scholarship. Her novels Alt som er (All There Is), 2004, and Mitt milde vesen (My Gentle Self), 2006, have been praised by the critics. In 2011 her novel Adam Hjorts veg (Adam Hiort's Journey) was published, described by Norwegian author Linn Ullmann as "Playful, beautiful, hilarious and utterly compelling - a novel bursting with literary energy."

Bildøen has translated several novels and children's books, and is also a children's books author herself. In 2009 she published a collection of essays called Litterær Salong with readings of Gertrude Stein, Doris Lessing, Elfriede Jelinek and other female writers.

How to grieve, and to go on living in the shadow of an even greater grief? In Eivind Hofstad Evjemo's new novel we meet a married couple, Arild and Sella, who are trying, each in their own way, to come to terms with the loss of their son Kim, whom they adopted from the Philippines. We follow Sella in particular, who feels that she and Kim were not as close as they might have been, and goes back over her memories in search of some explanation of why he left them. We learn that Kim died as a result of a ferry capsizing while in the Philippines, where perhaps he had been hoping to track down his biological mother. The accident happened over ten years ago, but the terrorist attack on the government buildings in Oslo and on Utøya of July 22nd, 2011 brings their own tragedy back to them, and to Sella in particular. A couple living in the same neighbourhood lost a daughter on Utøya, and Sella becomes almost obsessed with the thought of how this couple manage to articulate their loss, create new perspectives for their lives, and come to terms with something so unspeakable. She plans to bake something for them, because that's the kind of thing people do. But over and over again she abandons the idea and instead she observes them as closely as she can.

'Evjemo's writing is brilliant, unpretentious, precise and nuanced. (...) It's real. It's important. And it is penned by an author who would appear to be one of the best that Norwegian contemporary literature has to offer.'

Adresseavisen

'One seldom encounters such accomplished writing. Every sentence vibrates with aesthetic delight and existential solemnity.'

Eivind Hofstad Evjemo is a writer who needs nothing more than ordinary people in order to see deeply into life and open up wide perspectives to reflection, and he does so with a language that is uniquely precise and poetic. In his previous novel, The last thing you will see is a loving face, he described almost a whole community in welfare-state Norway, and all the various fates that go to keeping its wheels in motion. In his new novel it is as though he has zoomed in to focus on just a few of these fates, and managed to extract from within them an even larger humanity. Following Sella as she tries to get to grips with the real nature of her relationship with Kim, and the way in which she understands her own inadequacies, makes for powerful and rewarding reading, as does the way in which she uses a national grief to find perspective and language for her private sorrows.

Eivind Hofstad Evjemo has attended the Litterær Gestaltning in Gothenburg. For his debut novel Vekk meg hvis jeg sovner from 2009 he won the Tarjei Vesaas' First Fiction Prize, a prize which has also been given to authors like Lars Saabye Christensen, Roy Jacobsen and Karin Fossum.

Attack From All Sides

Angrep fra alle kanter

Genre: Fiction
Category: Novel
Publisher: Oktober
Year: 2014
Pages: 440

With the potent thriller See You Tomorrow (2013), Tore Renberg gave new life to the suspense novel to great acclaim from readers and critics. This was the first novel in the series. Attack From All Sides is the second.

The brilliant Sandnes boy Ben is fed up of his stingy father and psychotic mother. He is bored of sniffing petrol with his older brother Rikki behind the abandoned boy scout house. Now he hides a butterfly knife in his pocket, and intends to set heaven and hell in motion in the quest for a new life.

Sixteen kilometres further north lies the richest city in the world; Stavanger. It is the home of the Hillevåg gang: Uncle Rudi, Jan Inge and Cecilie. They live outside the law. Supporters of the Christian party, they are into heavy metal and don't care a damn about the rules of an oil-rich society. The only thing they lack is a break which will yield big money.

With his frightened older brother Rikki, Ben leaves their childhood home and sets off on a voyage which will be catastrophic for some and a shining success for others. It is October in Rogaland. The earth rumbles. Money crackles. The ferris wheel turns. Poor children of the rainbow.

Tore Renberg made his literary debut in 1995 and has since had books published in most genres, as well as written scripts for film and stage. Renberg has a wide readership, and his books have received several awards and are translated into numerous languages. In 2013, the innovative See You Tomorrow was published. From All Sides is of the same caliber.

Tore Renberg is the author of several novels which have become standard reading both in Norway and further afield, and which include the five iconic novels about the fallible antihero Jarle Klepp. These books captured the essence of an era and displayed a portrait of a young man in a way never before seen in Norwegian literature.

Suffering from a severe hangover, record producer Jim Gystad visits Vinger Church and hears divine singing. The voices from the pew behind Jim practically lift him into eternity and away from the dreary, soulless blues he ordinarily spends his working hours trying to breathe life into. And for the first time in ages, his life doesn't feel completely meaningless.

The voices he has heard belong to The Singing Thorsen Siblings. There was a time when the trio, two brothers and a sister, toured the US and sold hundreds of thousands of records like "It's My Cross to Bear" and "Thirty Silver Coins on Our Father's Bible". Then the three siblings found love. And then they lost it. And they don't perform any longer.

From now on Jim's life only revolves around one thing: a firm decision to make the Thorsen Siblings return to singing. He is about to be severely tasked. And the hardest challenge of them all: to bring love back into their lives.

When his first short story collection Fever was published in 2002, Henriksen immediately captured the public's imagination with his unique and charismatic voice. This was followed in 2003 by Down, Down, Down, a further selection of short stories. His break-through came in 2004 with his novel Snow Will Fall on Fallen Snow. This soon became a best seller and was awarded The Booksellers' Prize as well as being selected for recommendation by one of Norway's major book clubs, BNB. Henriksen's trademark is a capacity for combining a strong, at times aggressive, masculine voice with vulnerability. His works are mainly set in a tough, unsentimental, rural environment, which sits uncomfortably on the edges of contemporary urban life; a place where old and new values clash, and where men struggle with contemporary, urban demands on their masculinity.

Henriksen was a journalist for many years on a local newspaper in Kongsvinger, a small town which appears in much of his work, before becoming a full time author. He also plays the bass in his own band, writing song lyrics and composing.

In 2010, the prize-winning director, Bent Hamer, released a feature film, Home for Christmas, based on Nothing but Soft Presents for Christmas to critical acclaim and full houses.

Lust, shame and loneliness: Hedda is going back to work after the summer holidays. It's going to be a fine autumn. She'll be full of energy and resolve. She's looking forward to it. She will relish the things she has. She has a good relation to the pupils and her colleagues and a good family life. She is still young. She looks good. She doesn't drink more than most people.

The action in Breathless takes place in the course of a few days during which Hedda gradually loses control over her life. The reader gains a close and intimate insight into Hedda's family and everyday life, in a society where self-absorption has become as important as social responsibility. Do what you want, as long as you don't bother anyone. It is all about finding the golden mean. Hedda is unable to find one. She behaves recklessly and her escapades have great consequences for those she loves.

Breathless is about lust, shame and loneliness – and about taking and receiving.

Children of God starts in Bethlehem at the time of Jesus' birth, when King Herod gives the order for all boys under the age of two to be killed. The novel continues on until after his death. We meet Roman soldiers and gangs of robbers, prophets and disciples, young children and lepers – all caught between powers of good and evil. All their stories form a web where the fantastic and terrifying, great and small go hand in hand. Officer Cato doubts whether he is doing the right thing when he follows Herod's orders. Jacob's father is afraid that his son is touched by evil because he stammers. Anna is looking for the man she once loved. The robber Nadab tries to protect the light he carries around with him. And Peter can't sleep for fear of what awaits them all. Powerful forces fight for control in Children of God. Lars Petter Sveen has written a novel unlike any other. These are stories no one has read before, from a world everyone knows.

A woman is found murdered in her home in the idyllic coastal town of Losvika. She is sitting in a chair next to the window with a view of both the road and the harbour. Her father was killed by robbers in the same house only a year earlier. The murder was never solved, and a shadow has long hung over the village – people are afraid that there is a killer among them.

Journalist Kajsa Coren starts looking into the murdered woman's past. Her father was a preacher in a conservative chapel environment. The woman lived alone and never talked to anyone. She spent her days sitting in front of the window, watching her neighbours and learning a great deal about a lot of people.

The police have a lot of leads, but struggle to solve the cases. Did the same person kill both father and daughter? Did the woman see something from her look-out post which resulted in her death?

When a young girl in a neighbouring house disappears, the police increase their efforts, and the townspeople's uneasiness increases as a storm approaches from the sea.

1980s: British pilots on extremely hazardous missions under the radar in Northern Norway.

2010: A former fighter pilot is found dead in a hotel room in Tromsø.

The former fighter pilot Peter Barrow is found dead in a hotel room in Tromsø. Journalist Alexander Winther, of the Nordlys newspaper, discovers that several of Barrow's former squadron colleagues have also died in mysterious circumstances. Is there a connection? Delving into the pilots' past lives revives Alexander's memories of his time as a soldier in Afghanistan and this destroys his relationship with his girlfriend, Vivi. The journalist finds out that a terrible incident during the Cold War in Northern Norway lies behind it all. When an attempt is made on the life of his source in NRK, the national broadcasting company, Alexander understands that there is someone who would go to any lengths to keep the past concealed.

Against a backdrop of the Cold War and the threat of atomic attack at the beginning of the 1980s, Asbjørn Jaklin weaves historic events into his crime novel Red Zone. What really happened on 11th March 1982 when a Twin Otter with fifteen civilian passengers on board plunged into the sea outside Gamvik? Was a NATO fighter plane involved in the accident?

Asbjørn Jaklin is a bestselling, highly acknowledged non-fiction author. During the last decade he has specialized on war- and postwar history, stories with a strong narrative drive and a reliable research. His books have been translated into several languages. For The Northern Front he gained a nomination to the Brage Prize for best Norwegian non-fiction title.

With his new crime series set in Tromsø and Northern Norway he aims to reach a new and broader readership while he continues to please readers who enjoy his history writing. His suspense fiction will show the drama and tensions that always envelop this region, both in our time and in times of war, cold and "hot". For many reasons Northern Norway appears to be in the spotlight of the superpowers again and again – either in battles for resources and territories, in shady military operations or in the ongoing political power plays.

Sovjetistan. A Journey Through Turkmenistan, Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tadzjikistan and Uzbekistan

Sovjetistan

Genre: Non-Fiction
Category: Travelogue
Publisher: Kagge
Year: 2014
Pages: 495

In her third documentary account, Erika Fatland takes the reader on a journey that is unknown to even the most seasoned globetrotter. The five former Soviet Republics' Kazakhstan, Kyrgyzstan, Tajikistan, Turkmenistan and Uzbekistan all became independent when the Soviet Union fell apart in 1991. How have these countries developed since then? With this in mind, Erika Fatland explores with her usual compassion and vast knowledge of these societies, their recent and ancient history, their culture and landscapes. She invites the reader to witness gripping human encounters and interesting accounts of how the Soviet heritage has influenced these countries, where the governing rule varies between experiments in democracy to pure dictatorship – a few of them with a personal cult and mismanagement unlike any other.

In these countries, that used to be the furthest border of the Soviet Union, life follows another pace of time. Alexander the Great's army brought with them the walnut from Arslanbob in Kyrgyzstan to Europe, and in the Yagnob Valley on the border of Tajikistan and Uzbekistan the population still speak Sogdian, the main language of the silk trail. In between the treasures of Samarkand and the bleakness of Soviet architecture, Erika Fatland moves with her openness towards the people and the landscapes around her. A rare and unforgettable travelogue.

'Precise report from the Soviet outskirts. Shrewd observations from a country where the absolute rulers take turns to rule. With an acute journalist eye, firm writing and not least a solid background in social anthropology, Erika Fatland has given us a number of astute books on complicated subjects.'

Aftenposten

'A road trip dotted with curious incidents, thought-provoking observations and absurd stories (...)'

Knut Hamsun – The Journey to Hitler

Knut Hamsun. Reisen til Hitler

Genre: Non-Fiction
Category: History
Publisher: Cappelen Damm
Year: 2014
Pages: 400
English sample translation available

On Saturday 26 June 1943, Hitler granted one of his rare audiences to a writer, the Norwegian Knut Hamsun, then generally hailed as the greatest living writer of the Germanic peoples, a contemporary Goethe. The meeting started jovially, but ended in disaster. While Hamsun insisted on his loyalty to the Führer, he also spoke out against him, interrupting a man who was not used to being interrupted. A furious Hitler ended the conversation after 45 minutes – and Hamsun and his entourage left in disappointment.

This is the first time this spectacular event in Norwegian and European cultural history has been used as the basis for an entire book. The book explores the trappings of literary genius and authority, as well as the uses of culture in Nazi Germany.

The book's main narrative, the seven-day journey to and from the meeting, ends with an epilogue which includes Hamsun's obituary for Hitler, published on 7 May 1945. After a teaser which takes the reader straight into the journey, the book – in order to establish the premises of what took place – considers a few episodes from Hamsun's life up until 1943.

"If we had observed a minute of silence for each of the six million Jews that were murdered, we would have stood still for twelve years."

The quotation comes from the 87 year old Blanche Major. In Female Time Witnesses. Stories from the Holocaust, Major and nine other Jewish women talk about their horrifying experiences from Auschwitz, Theresienstadt, Bergen-Belsen and other Nazi concentration camps.

Surrounded by soldiers, dogs and electric fences, the young girls had one goal in common: to survive. In this book they tell about the humiliation, hunger and despair they experienced. But here are also stories of dignity, solidarity and hope. Each fate is unique, but taken together they display an unbreakable will to live and an astonishing lack of bitter feelings.

Female Time Witnesses is a book that tells the story about what happened and what must never happen again.

'These eyes have seen things no one should have to see. These are eyes that belong to ten women who demonstrate great courage in telling their stories, and who live on — despite all the evil and suffering they have been witness to.'

Aftenposten

'The stories of these women, and the sober way they are penned by Jakob Lothe, constitute an important, attitude-forming piece of work.'

Ingeborg Eliassen has been travelling reporter in Europe since autumn 2012, covering the Euro crisis. She has witnessed personally how the people and societies in Southern Europe are becoming unstable due to the economical crisis. The pattern is the same across all of the Mediterranean: the very foundation of the European social model is crumbling.

Only since September 2011, the number of unemployed people has increased with over 2.1 million to almost 18.5 millions. Many people who still have a job are feeling the pressure. With the crisis as an excuse salaries and pensions have been reduced in Spain, Greece, Italy, Portugal and Ireland. In many places, employees' rights and employment regulations that have taken generations of struggle to acquire have been nullified.

We meet people in Germany, Greece, France and Sweden who are struggling to make ends meet. The directives from the European Union and the International Monetary Fund threaten the self-determination of the countries and create a harsh climate at work. In June 2014, also the Norwegian government proposed changes in the Work Environment.

The Discovery of Babylon

Oppdagelsen av babylon

Genre: Non-Fiction
Category: History
Publisher: Spartacus
Year: 2014
Pages: 250
English sample translation available

After lying buried in the ground for over 2000 years, the remains of Babylon were dug up by archaeologists around one hundred years ago. Yet the city remains enveloped in a web of myths, which occupy a unique place in our culture, in spite of its origin in the ancient past.

Why does Babylon continue to fascinate us, expressing itself even in contemporary culture: as the space ship Nebuchadnezzar in the film Matrix, in pop culture songs and the titles of novels? We build ever taller buildings and towers, whether it is in Dubai, Shanghai, or New York. What is it about Babylon that makes it such a useful metaphor in describing opponents and enemies with their hungry power ambitions, their evil and decay? In order to answer these questions, the reader is taken along on a journey of discovery through the sources of the many concepts about Babylon throughout time, from Biblical and other ancient texts to the ruins that archaeologists uncovered about over a century ago.

This innovative book combines several approaches, including a focus on the Bible and antiquity, art history and contemporary art, archaeology, theology, and socio political and intellectual history, as well as perspectives on how we view the past in our own time. Illustrated with maps and photos.

Rannfrid Thelle teaches biblical studies at Wichita State University in Kansas, USA, and has worked at the University of Oslo in the past. She has worked with The Old Testament in particular, and has traveled extensively in the Middle East, including Iraq. Thelle has previously published Ask God: Divine Consultation in the Literature of the Hebrew Bible (2002) and Approaches to the Chosen Place: Accessing a Biblical Concept (2012). She has also written the articles "Babylon in the Book of Jeremiah: Negotiating a Power Shift" and "Babylon as Judah's Doppelgänger: The Identity of Opposites in the Book of Jeremiah".

Mary Magdalene. The Disciple Jesus Loved

Maria magdalena. Disippelen Jesus elsket.

Genre: Non-Fiction
Category: Historical Biography
Publisher: Aschehoug
Year: 2014
Pages: 320

In 591 AD, Pope Gregor declared that Mary Magdalene had been a “repentant whore”, and this image of her prevailed for 1,500 years. It was only in 1969 that the Roman Catholic Church distanced itself from this dogma. In recent years there has also been great interest in this figure among those with spiritual leanings.

Mary Magdalene was one of Jesus’ disciples and the only one who didn’t abandon him at Calvary. She is also the one that Jesus revealed himself to following his resurrection. She was the disciple Jesus loved.

Kristin Johansen takes us on an exciting and ground-breaking journey where we follow the figure of Mary Magdalene through scriptures and historical sources from Jesus’ time up through ancient Christianity and the Middle ages until our time. She shows how Mary Magdalene is contributing to the return of women within the realm of Christianity and how she has also played an important role in popular culture up until today.

Kristin Brandtsegg Johansen is a historian of ideas and has previously authored a study of Sigrid Undset entitled Hvis kvinner ville være kvinner published by Aschehoug in 1998.

Leonardo da Vinci og hans tid

Genre: Non-Fiction
Category: Biography
Publisher: Gyldendal
Year: 2014
Pages: 336
English synopsis available

Leonardo da Vinci (1452–1519) was the most gifted European ever and one of very few people who deserve the appellation a universal genius.

Atle Næss paints a broad picture of Leonardo da Vinci. He follows his journey through Renaissance Europe – from the Medici's court in Florence to the Sforzas of Milan, the Roman Pope and finally to Europe's most powerful man, Francis 1 of France.

Leonardo da Vinci is primarily known as a painter and creator of masterpieces like Mona Lisa and The Last Supper, but he was also one of his age's most prominent sculptors, engineers and scientists.

He left a vast volume of notes and sketches, and many of these are quoted in the biography. His entire oeuvre of paintings is also reproduced in the book.

Atle Næss has written a series of critically appraised books.

He has studied English, Norwegian and linguistics and has a cand.philol. degree from the University of Oslo. Before becoming a full-time writer, he worked as a teacher. His first book, the novel Gun, was published in 1975. He often bases his work on historical sources.

In 2001 he was awarded the Brage Prize for his biography of Galileo Galilei.

The Evolution of Consciousness and How to Make the Most of it

Bevissthet. Forstå hjernen og få et bedre liv

Genre: Non-Fiction
Category: Popular Science
Publisher: Spartacus
Year: 2014
Pages: 200
English sample translation available

Consciousness implies an awareness of sensations and a capacity to experience life. To answer the question of why we have this feature, the author proposes the following evolutionary trajectory: nervous systems appeared for the purpose of orchestrating behaviour. As a rule of thumb, the challenges facing an animal concern either approaching an opportunity or avoiding harm. These two options were originally hard-wired as reflexes. Our distant ancestors gained consciousness because they needed to experience feelings in order to weigh positive and negative outcomes; which typically implies deciding between approach or avoidance. The system was a success because it improved the strategy for choosing behavioural options appropriate for the genes.

A range of evidence suggests that the attribute first appeared in the amniotes (the phylogenetic group comprising reptiles, birds and mammals). In the human lineage, the feature expanded to yield the "film of life" we experience; and to include qualities such as self-awareness, advanced cognition, and a level of free will. Besides offering an understanding of what consciousness is about, the model suggests a strategy for improving the impact it has on our quality of life.

This is no ordinary book about mushrooms. It is the story of the capricious and sought-after porcini, about porcini biology, its cultural history, where to find it, the global economy of the porcini, and of course a good selection of recipes with porcini as the main ingredient. The mushroom to which people in North Italy give their lives each autumn, simply in an attempt to find it. The mushroom that Karl XIV Johan, King of Sweden and Norway, lifted aloft and gave his name to forever. The mushroom that gives poor Chinese farmers and American dropouts a better life. The mushroom that the Romans loved and which has become an important part of the Italian identity. Highly prized by gourmets and enjoying a global market worth over a billion Euros. No one cultivates it, though many have tried. The porcino will not be tamed. It is born to be wild.

“A whole book about porcini?
Everything you know about porcini, everything you should know about

Words of Love. Etymological and Cultural Dictionary of Words Related to Love

Kjærlighetens etymologi

Genre: Non-Fiction

Category: Lexicon

Publisher: Kagge

Year: 2014

Pages: 192

English sample translation available

This is a highly original book that covers around 600 words related to different aspects of love, like words for feelings, senses, anatomy, family, relationships, religion and moral. For each word is given a definition, the origin and semantic evolution, related words in English and other languages, and if possible relevant quotes and cultural facts. The information is based on updated etymological dictionaries from many languages, encyclopaedias and books about history and customs related to love and marriage in European countries. It also makes references to how human sexuality is different from that of other primates.

This comprehensive dictionary aims at popularising information from the best academic works. This book will be essential reading if you are looking for the etymology of words, or want to read about different aspects of the history of love, or are seeking after points and anecdotes for a speech.

Most of the etymological information can be found in the author's Norwegian Etymological Dictionary – Thematically arranged (2013, 1920 pages) which has been published in 50 000 copies and was highly claimed by critics. It was awarded with the Brage prize, the most distinctive Norwegian literary award.

Yann de Caprona has a French-American father and a Swedish mother and was brought up in Italy. He has studied Economics, History and Geography at the Sorbonne University in Paris. He speaks fluently French, Norwegian, Swedish, English and Italian, and has studied Spanish, Latin and Greek. He has lived in Oslo since 1985. He began his career within development aid and international relations at the Red Cross, the Norwegian Ministry of Foreign Affairs and other ministries. # Human Encounters. An Introduction to Intercultural Communication

Møte mellom mennesker. Innføring i interkulturell kommunikasjon

Genre: Non-Fiction

Category:

Publisher: Gyldendal Akademisk

Year: 2013 (2nd edition)

Pages: 314

English sample translation and detailed content list available

Human Encounters provides a solid introduction to the field of intercultural communications. The reader gains insight into important concepts, theories of communication, methods of analysis and ethical challenges. The book also has a practical aim: to shed light on themes such as encountering other languages, use of interpreters, unusual body language, different understandings of time, relocation, use of power and the management of cultural conflict.

This accessible and richly illustrated book will be suitable for students of university colleges and universities as well as all those who encounter intercultural work situations in Norway and abroad, for example within the school system, health and social welfare sectors, public administration, support services, the travel industry and business.

Dr. of Philosophy Øyvind Dahl, himself brought up in Madagascar, has travelled and worked in several parts of the world and is now Professor Emeritus at the Mission University College in Stavanger. There he took the initiative to establish the Centre for Intercultural Communication (SIK) and the Nordic Network for Intercultural Communication (NIC).

What is Football?

Hva er fotball

Genre: Non-Fiction

Publisher: Universitetsforlaget

Year: 2014

Pages: 160

Football is more than twenty-two men chasing a ball for 90 minutes. For many people football is a question of life and death. Football is passion. It's identity. Football is the world's largest sport for children and youth. Football is the world's largest media product. Others will say that football first and foremost is a game with specific rules. All these perspectives are included in the book What is football? The author has combined a wide range of perspectives and has organized it through the five chapters: "The Game", "the Sport", "Passion", "Identity" and "the Product".

Why does football engage people all over the world? In this well-written book the author gives the football-ignorant stimulating encounters with an unfamiliar topic, and the football expert will find interesting new perspectives.

Matti Goksøy is Professor in history at the Norwegian School of Sport Sciences. He has published books and articles nationally and internationally mainly on the subjects: football and sports in general; nationalism and national identities; sports and international relations; sports, politics and culture; polar history and skiing.

Motivational Interviewing. Counseling to Change

Motiverende intervju. Samtaler om endring

Genre: Non-Fiction
Category:
Publisher: Gyldendal Akademisk
Year: 2014
Pages: 216

Motivational interviewing (MI) is a goal-oriented, client-centred form of counselling that can be used to explore and strengthen a client's intrinsic motivation to change. The counselling should result in a person deciding in favour of, and moving in the direction of, a certain result. MI is based on knowledge of how counselling can influence a person's motivation to change, despite conflicting thoughts and feelings around changing their own behaviour.

The relationship between client and helper is essential for a positive result – they must share the same goals. Both must therefore be motivated for the same change. However, it is the client's thoughts and feelings that are central. The client is the one to make decisions about his or her own life.

MI was originally developed for clinical work with clients with a substance abuse problem. However, the method can be used in many areas of treatment and rehabilitation work in which a change in problematic behaviour is desirable - in therapy, counselling and consultation within the health sector and social work. The book's authors have actively participated in the development of theory and practice of the MI method, both in Norway and internationally, especially through information activities, training and running courses.

Tom Barth (b. 1951) is a specialist in clinical psychology and since 2002 he has operated his own practice with the main emphasis on teaching, training and guidance in motivational interviewing. He has also worked with substance abuse and dependency issues at the Hjeljestad Clinic and the Bergen Clinics Foundation. Tom has written several textbooks about MI and participates actively in the professional development of this field internationally. He is a member of the Motivational Network of Trainers (MINT).

Tore Børtveit (b. 1961) is a specialist in clinical psychology and now works as part of Health Bergen's OCD team. Tore has worked with substance abuse and dependency problems for several years, most recently in adult psychiatry, and has taught motivational interviewing for a number of years. In addition to qualifying as an MI trainer, he has also undergone further training in cognitive and metacognitive therapy. He is a member of MINT.

Peter Prescott (b. 1955) is a specialist in clinical psychology and currently works as part of Health Bergen's OCD team and as a lecturer at the University of Bergen. He also teaches and supervises in cognitive therapy and motivational interviewing. He has worked with substance abuse problems and adult psychiatry and has undergone further training in cognitive and metacognitive therapy. He is a member of MINT and the Norwegian Association for Cognitive Therapy.

The Bible in Popular Culture

Bibelen i populærkulturen

Genre: Non-Fiction
Category:
Publisher: Scandinavian Academic Press
Year: 2014
Pages: 300

In popular culture, there are innumerable references to the Bible. In this book three theologians illustrate how the Bible is used in films, books and on TV.

What status does the Bible have in our culture when it is parodied in The Simpsons? And what happens to our understanding of the Bible when the Book of Books provides funny points or aesthetic ingredients for our contemporary mass culture? This is some of the questions raised in the book. The authors emphasize that the Bible is not only "high-grade culture," but from the very beginning it has also been a part of everyday culture, culture for the populace. Today, this way of using the bible is expressed through the mass media, the most important form of everyday culture. The Bible offers funny points, or aesthetic ingredients to general, marketable and popular culture. At the same time, this means that the authority of the Bible both as a holy text and cultural heritage is challenged.

The book is written by three research fellows from the Faculty of Theology. They work on various research projects based on the Old and the New Testaments.

OLE JAKOB LØLAND (b. 1981) is a minister in the Church of Norway and was the first in Norway to integrate the music and text material of U2 in his sermons.

ANDERS MARTINSEN (b. 1983) has, among other things, worked with contextual theology.

PETTER SKIPPERVOLD (b. 1975) has toured with the band PostScriptum for many years and has made many records. He has ten years of teaching experience from the Faculty of Theology.

Dear Dyrebar

Genre: Children And Young Adults
Category: Picture Book
Publisher: Magikon
Year: 2014
Pages: 32

Aude is a young girl who comes to an island – an overgrown, untouched and mystical landscape. Here she meets the deer, a big and powerful animal. They get to know each other, and she gets to ride through the woods on the deer's back. The deer is bounding too fast, and when the accident happens, the deer knows that the child is the precious and vulnerable one. Aude, who is on the verge between childhood and adulthood, discovers things about life and nature. This is a picture book for elder children and young adults.

A Fish for Luna

En fisk til Luna

Genre: Children And Young Adults
Category: Picture Book
Publisher: Gyldendal
Year: 2014
Pages: 40
ISBN: 9788205462687
Full English translation available.

Luna can't sleep. She opens her window and peeks out. There is something out there. Something is gliding slowly between the houses. Is it a balloon? A flying fish? Luna's parents say it is ugly and that she can't keep it, so Luna decides to help it back home. But it won't say where home is. All it says is "Ay", "Yue", "Kuu", "Maan", "Tsuki", "Karoo" and "Kamar". And it says "Luna".

With great bravery Lisa Aisato explores life's big issues and presents an original and fresh take on subjects as human as loneliness and hope. Always firmly anchored in a child perspective, with a child's intensity of sensation. In this case personified in the shape of a lonesome fish. A Fish for Luna is a unique and beautiful picture book tale.

Shortlisted for the Brage Prize 2014, the Ministry of Culture's Literature Prize 2014 (Best Children's and Young Adults Book) and the Book Blogger's Prize 2014.

'A beautiful picture book ... Lisa Aisato confirms that she most definitely is among the most interesting picture book artists in Norway.'

The War Krigen

Genre: Children And Young Adults
Category: Picture Book
Publisher: Cappelen Damm
Year: 2013
Pages: 56
English sample translation available

Inga has seen photographs of the war in the newspaper and heard the sound of bombs and gunshots on television. Luckily Inga lives in a peaceful country, where not even the bumblebees present a threat. But when war creeps closer and Mum and Dad bring the conflict into Inga's own home, it feels as if it also moves into Inga's head. It stays there, even long after Mum and Dad have separated.

Is it possible to be happy again, after having gone through a war? Can you remove the conflict from your mind, even if it has settled there?

Nominated for the Nordic Council Children and Young People's Literature Prize 2014.

'Few could convey this kind of story with the same skill (...) Her poetic, wise words diminish the hugely sorrowful impression created by the plot...The illustrations are exciting, showing original emphasis and use of colour.'

Dagbladet

Gro Dahle made her literary debut with a collection of poetry, Audiens (Audience), in 1987. Since then she has written a number of poetry collections and children's books, in addition to textbooks in Norwegian language and literature for primary schools. Dahle stands out as a stylistically naive, imaginative, quick-witted and burlesque writer – a poet treading her own path. As a children's book writer she is known for her poetic books on themes that are often given little attention. Her poetry collections Regnværsåter and Hundre tusen timer have solid places in the canon of modern Norwegian poetry.

Gro Dahle was awarded the Ministry of Cultural and Church Affairs' prize for best children's book in 2003, for her picture book Sinna mann (The Angry Man).

Kaia Linnea Dahle Nyhus (b. 1990) is a student of visual communication at the National Academy of Arts in Oslo, and also studies illustration at the Luzern College in Switzerland. Odd isn't particularly brave. In fact, he's really rather afraid. Of dogs, for example, and of teenagers. He's terrible at football and is always picked last during gym class. Worst of all, he cries so easily, especially when the others tease him. And they do, at every opportunity.

But one day the class goes on an excursion to the aquarium where Odd meets Rolf Lange, head of the reptile department. Rolf has tattoos and a pierced ear. He handles snakes and crocodiles as if they were cuddly toys.

Rolf probably isn't afraid of anything, thinks Odd, and is struck with an idea: He has to toughen up, and what he really needs is a crocodile...

The Three Billy Goats Gruff at the Water Park (2009) has been one of our greatest picture book successes in recent years, as a comical, adventure-fuelled text with lively, vivid illustrations. Now comes the sequel, The Three Billy Goats Gruff Return.

It's been a while, and the billy goats Gruff are beginning to wonder what they should do during their summer break. The two smallest billy goats want to take a trip abroad, but the biggest billy goat tells them that it's too expensive. He wants them all to join him out to pasture, just like they did last time. Against their will, the two smallest billy goats join him, but there have been some big changes. The troll has gone and the mountain pasture offering the best waffles has closed. It becomes clear that the troll has gone into a retirement home and the billy goats decide to visit him there.

The Three Billy Goats Gruff Return is a wild, fantastic tale and a perfect sequel to the first book about the billy goats Gruff.

A super hero for the underdog!

As long as the sun is up, Rune is merely Rune, but come night he transforms himself into Brown – a totally fearless super hero. Armed to the hilt with brushes and brown paint he sneaks out of the house. Rune can hardly be blamed if Brown chooses to paint the big bullies' bikes brown, can he?

Brown is a book about friendship, courage and retaliation. It is also a book about missing one's grandfather and just how wrong things can go when your super hero powers run out.

Illustrated by Øyvind Torseter.

'In this enormously charming book we meet three little superheroes, each equipped with a bucket of paint ... Øyvind Torseter's beautiful drawings show us what it's like to feel small and out of place in a big world. They also evoke the warmth of the friendship between the children ... Warmly recommended!'

Pages: 224

The authors of The Monster Book have chosen to explore the universe of monsters in a humorous, and sometimes slightly scary fashion. They have tracked down gigantic, huge monsters and small, tiny monsters, nice and nasty monsters, sad and happy monsters. This is a colourful and imaginative book for the whole family, suitable for reading aloud or for reading alone.

The Monster Book (Monsterboka) is the fourth in a critically acclaimed series of books, each bringing together brand-new Norwegian tales. The previous titles are The Good Night Book (Godnattboka), The Fairy Tale Book (Eventyrboka) and The Feeling Better Book (Trøysteboka). These prize winning anthologies are quickly achieving classic status, with many families owning the whole collection.

The book is illustrated by Gunvor Rasmussen, who also illustrated the other books in the series.

Category: Young Adult Novel
Publisher: Gyldendal
Year: 2014
Pages: 304

Dick has decided to set an unbreakable record: He is going to be the most negative person ever. It's a revolutionary idea. It's brilliant. And it is incredibly hard to follow through.

Primitive Possums is a book about great ideas, meetings that won't take place and a party that goes down in history. You'll split your sides laughing, perhaps shed a tear or two and maybe even grow a little wiser. Meet Dick, Jønna and Vilde – and experience a few days that almost change the course of humanity.

Primitive Possums is an original and hysterically funny novel for young adults, from one of our best children's book authors.

Arne Svingen is one of our foremost writers for children and young adults. His production spans from easy reads for children, to novels for children and young adults.

He is deeply committed to encouraging children and adolescents to read, and he is a true wizard at using humor and suspense to ensnare his readers. Thematically, his books span from pure entertainment to novels on difficult topics. He has written several novels for adults, radio plays for NRK and graphic novels. A number of Arne Svingen's books have been sold abroad, and he has been translated into Danish, Swedish, German, French and Italian. His breakthrough as a writer of thrillers came with Silent Screams (2001). He was awarded the Brage Prize for his novel Black Ivory in 2005.
