

Cathrine Evelid

Dreams from Texaco
Drømmer fra Texaco

Aschehoug 2016
253 Pages

FICTION
NOVEL

In her third novel, Cathrine Evelid takes the reader into a dreamlike landscape where ordinary people strive to belong and belong together.

Sisters Rita and Linda are used to new beginnings. This time their mother Aud is moving in with Finn in a flat above his Texaco garage. But the three newcomers seeking a family get more than they bargained for, as Finns mother and other relatives live right across the plain. The truth about what happened in the accident that almost killed Finn's brother, Alf, is blurred, and not everyone thinks Finn he is entitled to run the garage. Will Texaco become an end station or just another rest stop?

Dreams from Texaco is a powerful drama about family, inheritance and about growing roots when departure always lurks around the bend.

Cathrine Evelid trained as a painter and lives in Oslo. She received excellent reviews for her debut, Mamma er en countrysang (Mum is a Country Song) (2012) and was nominated for Sørlandets litteraturpris for her 2013 book Dinglen and Ramona. Drømmer fra Texaco is her best work to date, and might be her breakthrough.

NRK critic Leif Ekle compares Evelids book with Per Pettersons "Out stealing horses", and also writes: '[Evelid writes] very, very well. (...) Very much alive, this unsentimental – yes rough – story depicts human closeness, not through big words, but through acts and presence. And it depicts darkness and those with unkind intentions, without ever letting go of hope.'

Ingrid and Jan have been married for a quarter of a century. They live with their two sons in a large house in a nice Oslo neighbourhood. The boys are big enough to be counted as adults, but they behave like hotel guests. Ingrid has lost all her illusions both about family life and her teacher's job. Jan, however, is vitalized by his unexpected promotion to sectional director in the government ministry – as well as by the far younger advisor Hanne, who has seen all her friends disappear into regular family lives. It's time to take action.

No, A Hundred Times No is a sharp, funny and uncomfortable novel about the conditions of the nuclear family in a society where the lust of the moment is the ultimate guiding star and too much is never enough.

Winner of the 2016 Norwegian Youth's Critic's Award.

'A razor-sharp, deeply probing, uncomfortable love triangle story that reads like a pageturner (...) creeps under the reader's skin with its energetic, realistic prose, which at times tremble with violent emotion'

Adresseavisen

'Ibsenesque (...) incredibly precise in her portrayal of a certain form of life (...) satirical, recognizable and fun.'

Kulturhuset, NRK P2

'The book is well-written and entertaining (...) Sequel, please!'

Dagsavisen

Nina Lykke was born in 1965. Her first book, The Orgy and Other Stories, was nominated for the Young Readers' Critics' Prize. The novel Disintegration, which followed in 2013, had brilliant reviews and was shortlisted for the P2 Listeners' Novel Prize. In 2014 Lykke was awarded the Booksellers' Author Grant. In 2016 she had a major breakthrough with her third book, No, a Hundred Times No. The book has been printed in 29,000 copies in Norway.

Nina Lykke is one of the participants chosen for NORLA's development programme for new literary talents "New Voices", a part of the project of Norway as Guest of Honour at the Frankfurt Book Fair in 2019.

Vigdis Hjorth's new novel starts as a classic story of inheritance, centred on two summer cabins on the archipelago of Hvaler. Two children have been looking after the place and their parents for many years. They are due to inherit the cabins. But there are two other children, who have partly broken away from the family. How do they fit into the inheritance dispute?

During the inheritance discussions another story emerges which brings violent forces into play. It's all about family history. Wills and Testaments is a very powerful and interesting novel which will certainly arouse debate.

Winner of the 2016 Norwegian Booksellers' Prize and the 2016 Literary Critics' Prize.

'Vigdis Hjorth has written her best novel; about a sexual assault that destroys all the relationships in a family (...)'

Adresseavisen

'Only Vigdis Hjorth is able to handle a serious topic in such a strong, intelligent and poetic way.'

The Gradual Disappearance of Jane Ashland Jane Ashlands gradvise forsvinning

Tiden Norsk Forlag 2016
175 Pages
English sample translation available

She read that it usually ends with you undressing. One last fatal misunderstanding of the situation. So there you are, in your underwear, taut skin blue from the cold, large eyes numb and frozen. And, finally, draped in a shroud of fresh snow that must gently be brushed away once you are found. In the fog, she looks no different than a boulder within arm's reach. And if she tilts her head to the left, the orange tent covered in white frost begins to look like a mouldy orange.

An American woman wakes up alone in a tent in the Norwegian mountains. Outside there is a storm and the fog is dense. Her cell phone is dead. She doesn't have a map or a compass or any food. She actually came to Norway to seek out distant relatives, but when her trip goes awry she contacts a zoologist she met by chance on the plane. She ends up accompanying him on a musk oxen hike through the Dovrefjell mountain range, but here too everything goes wrong.

Out of the mist a picture gradually emerges of a past, a personal disaster, and a desperate search for new meaning. Even those you have lost everything, still have something to lose.

In The Gradual Disappearance of Jane Ashland, Houm displays great psychological insight and paints a unique portrait of sadness that is impossible not to be moved by.

Winner of the Norwegian Book Blogger Award 2016 (Best Novel)

"an austere wrenching and darkly comic novel...a psychological study of the reverberations of trauma, its impact deepens even as its suspense lessens, resulting in a winning novel."

A Lobster Life

Et hummerliv

Cappelen Damm 2016

FICTION

A Lobster Life is the many-faceted story, alternating between tragedy and comedy. It is about coming of age, about reaching a bit further than you thought you could, about understanding what you do not understand, and about the distance that can occur between people who love each other. Through exquisitely drawn characters Fosnes Hansen shows how self-deceit can be a means of survival and how we lie to ourselves and to others because being honest is more difficult. In this epic story the author gives us a unique portrayal of the time and a horrifying presentation of an unusual family.

A Lobster Life is about Sedd, a boy on the verge of adulthood, and about the hotel in the Norwegian mountains that is his home.

Erik Fosnes Hansen (b. in New York in 1965) made his debut at age twenty with the novel Falketårnet. The novel was praised by critics and audience alike as a debut far beyond the ordinary. His best-known work is his second novel, Psalm at Journey's End (1990), was received as a sensation by the press and is one of the best selling Norwegian postwar novels, also outside Scandinavia. The novel about the musicians in the multinational orchestra onboard the "Titanic" in 1912 reached bestseller level and earned superlatives from critics in the nearly thirty countries where it has been published so far. Fosnes Hansen's third novel, Beretninger om beskyttelse was published in 1998 and also became an international bestseller. His novel Løkvinnen from 2006 has been filmed by Filmkameratene and was released internationally in 2016.

What happens when there is no longer any need for you, neither at home, nor at work, and you are the last one to realize?

This is the starting point in the novel Great Occurrences on a Small Scale where we meet the librarian Arne Sjølingstad on the same day where he retires involuntarily. But Arne still loves his job, he lives and breathes for the communal projects and he has no plans to give in.

Great Occurrences on a Small Scale is a comical novel with a great seriousness. Through the eyes of the main character, that are more than normally dominated by his enthusiastic view of the job as a communal librarian, a great difference is exposed between life as he would like it to be and life as it turned out.

With great virtuosity, Bjørn Arild Ersland has created a recognizable and identifiable local universe where the movements in the depth of life are detectable in the tiny ripples on the surface of the language.

Bjørn Arild Ersland (b. 1965) is a significant author of books for both children and young adults. He has also written works of non-fiction. With more than 40 books to his name, he has been nominated for a long list of prizes, amongst others the Brage Prize no less than three times. Great Occurrences on a Small Scale is Ersland's fiction debut.

Max, Mischa and the Tet Offensive

FICTION

Friendship, exile, love, war and art: Johan Harstad's breathtaking new epic has it all.

Max Hansen is sleepless in the Midwest. He is a theatre director on tour across the US. It's possible that he has turned into an American. He hasn't been home for over 20 years.

If it was up to him he would never have left the place he was born, a suburb to Stavanger on the west coast of Norway, where kids could make as much noise as they wanted while their fathers were working on the oil rigs in the North Sea, and where a heavy silence descended on the houses when they returned. But no one gets what they want.

Max, Mischa and the Tet Offensive is a novel about the applicability of Vietnamese guerilla warfare in everyday life, about those who have been to war and those who have demonstrated against them: about hyperrealist paintings of washing machines and girls who look like Shelley Duvall; about the sun out on Fire Island and a sought-after working copy of Apocalypse Now. But more than anything this is a novel about the question anyone who has ever left home sooner or later has to ask himself: How long do you have to be away before it becomes too late to go home?

'Open your eyes wide! This is a novel which aims high, overflowing with the joy of storytelling, sharp reflections and a deep knowledge of the human being (...) Brutally clever!'

VG (6 out of 6 stars)

'A gigantic novel about war, love, flight and art which takes your breath away (...) a hypnotical read.'

Dagbladet (6 out of 6 stars)

'Harstad's masterpiece (...) A truly great novel.'

Adresseavisen

Johan Harstad (b. 1979) offers a wholly original voice and is one of the most obvious talents published by Gyldendal for many years. He made his debut 21 years old, with a contribution to the anthology Postboks 6860 in 2000, releasing his first collection of prose works, From here on you just get older, in 2001. Then followed a collection of short stories, Ambulance, in 2002 received with critical acclaim.

In 2005 he published his first novel, Buzz Aldrin, what happened to you in all the confusion?, which was later adapted into a TV-series. Another novel Hasselby, followed in 2007. In 2009 Johan Harstad was employed as the first house play write at Norway's Nationaltheatret. He has published two volumes of plays, BSIDES, 2008 and Etc., 2010. Translation rights to Harstad's previous titles have been sold to 22 countries.

Sickle Sigd

Genre: Fiction
Category: Poetry
Publisher: Tiden Norsk Forlag
Year: 2016
Pages: 144
English sample translation available

Endre grows up as the heir to a farm in a village in western Norway in the 19th century. He is expected to be like his father and his forefathers. As a young man he meets Abalone, marries her and takes over the farm. The future looks bright — until Endre falls ill and is confined to his bed. He is now forced to sell the farm. Who is he without the rights and the duty to which he is born? What does he now have to live for? That is when books from the other side of the big ocean enter Endres life, and take him with them out into the world.

Sickle is a story, in the form of poetry, about a simple — but at the same time magnificent — life, about the universe books can open, and how a man who is bedridden can take part in discoveries in countries far away. It is a story about a time which no longer exists, but which is still recognisable. And it is the love story of Endre and Abalone — who finally create their own language so that they are able to speak together again.

Winner of the 2016 Nynorsk Literature Prize

'Sickle is quite simply an impressive collection of poems.'

Aftenposten

'Her best poems. (...) there is a strong and tender lyrical voice present in this observant and imaginative collection of poems. Ruth Lillegraven demonstrates with this book that she is a very special voice within the portrayals of village life in contemporary lyrical poetry.'

In the autumn of 1028, the Norwegian king is forced to flee. The Danish king, Cnut the Great, runs Olaf Haraldsson out of the country. Olaf travels east to Russia accompanied by only his most trusted men. His younger half-brother, Harald, remains at home. So does the severely injured Rane Kingsward, once the most feared of all Vikings. The old Viking teaches the stubborn young boy his weaponry skills. When the old berserker sets out on horseback from the estate, it is with Harald chained to the back of another like a slave. Thus begins a long journey for the obstinate apprentice and his unyielding master. For Harald it is a journey that has just as big an impact on his unformed mind as the Battle of Stiklestad (1030) that makes his brother Saint Olaf. After the major battle for Christianity, it is Harald who must flee. He is now heir apparent and in great danger.

Jan Ove Ekeberg (b. 1954) lives in Fredrikstad, journalist and till recently; head of TV 2 Financial News, today a full time author. Ekeberg's debut was a biography on former PM, Gro Harlem Brundtland (1996). Since then Ekeberg has written several non-fiction books, children's books and novels. Ekeberg reached a large audience with his first historical suspense series IN TIMES OF SWORDS (2011-2013), set in the 12th century.

His new series featuring the Viking king Harald Hardråde, was launched in spring 2016 to marvellous reviews. He aims to deliver the sequels The Devil's Horseman and Imperial Mercenary by 2020.

FICTION
CRIME FICTION (VOL. 5 IN A SERIES)

The Fortune Hunter is the fifth book in Jan-Erik Fjell's prize-winning and much talked-about crime series following the brusque and sometimes heavy-handed Anton Brekke, a detective with the Norwegian Kripos elite investigations team in Oslo.

In autumnal Fredrikstad in Norway, the remains of a human hand are recovered from a 1978 Cadillac. At the same time a woman is found murdered at a local rubbish dump.

Anton Brekke is sent to Fredrikstad to work out what links the two events.

In glittering and grand 70s Vegas, where anything is possible if you have the money, a young Norwegian woman encounters the casino mogul Elliot Appelbaum. When she one day sees something she shouldn't have she is forced to flee to stay alive.

The Fortune Hunter alternates between today and the 1970s, and between the grey everyday of Fredrikstad and the allure of Las Vegas. The two are expertly interwoven into one thrilling story, with a conclusion that will surprise everyone.

'My goodness what a good crime novel Jan-Erik Fjell has written (...) The easiest crime recommendation I'll give this year!'

Jan-Erik Fjell (b. 1982) was brought up in Gressvik, outside Fredrikstad on the west side of Oslofjord. He made his crime debut in 2010 with Tysteren, which won the Norwegian Booksellers' Award. At the age of 28 he was the youngest recipient of the prestigious prize, and the first installment of the Anton Brekke-series was highly praised among both critics and readers. Tysteren was the fifth best selling Norwegian crime novel from 2006 to 2011 (the first four were all by Jo Nesbø).

Jan-Erik Fjell has been writing full time since, and has written five titles in the series about the Norwegian superintendent Anton Brekke. The first four books in the series have sold over 350,000 copies in Norway alone.

Ragna Riegel works at Europris and lives alone in her childhood home. Her parents have died and her only son has moved to Berlin, and they have no contact other than occasional Christmas and birthday cards.

Ragna lives within close confines. She likes her job because it is full of routine, she likes to sit on the same seat in the bus every day and she likes to buy the same things at the local shop each day. She must have order in her life. And she does, until one day she finds a letter in her mailbox with her name on the envelope and a clear threat written in block capitals on the sheet inside. The letter reinforces a nightmare where Ragna Riegel's life is threatened by an unknown enemy and she realises that she must use all means possible to defend herself.

The novel takes the form of Konrad Sejer's interrogation of Ragna Riegel after the worst has happened; after it is too late.

Karin Fossum (b. 1954) made her literary debut in 1974 with the poetry collection Kanskje i morgen, for which she won the Vesaas First Writer's Award. She has published books in several genres, but is perhaps best known for her crime fiction about Konrad Sejer. Several of her books have been filmed. She has received a number of prestigious awards, including an LA Times Book Award for her novel Elskede Poona.

Karin Fossum's books are translated into 34 languages.

One early morning in October 2013, two Norwegian-Somali teenage sisters prepare themselves to go to school. Or so they pretend. They leave Oslo that morning, heading to cross the Syrian border to join the Islamist insurgency. Their parents are in shock, they had no idea. The father — a former child soldier from Somalia — follows their trail. He finds them, only to be thrown into an ISIS-prison where he is tortured and made the victim of several mock executions. The sisters decide to stay in Syria, they marry ISIS fighters, and become part of the so-called ‘Housewives of Raqqa.’

What made them go? What is the cause of their radicalization? What role does religion play? Is this a teenage revolt against parents who never let them choose how to live their life? Why do they argue that using the niqab is a feminist act?

MEMOIR

"Where does my father's story begin? Where does my own story begin?"
When Ivo de Figueiredo at the age of 45 years asked these questions, he opened the door to family history spanning over four continents, five centuries and the rise and fall of two empires.

His father's family emigrated from the Portuguese colony of Goa on the west coast of India to British East Africa. They were Indians with European ways and values, trusted servants of the imperial powers. When colonialism came to an end, they became homeless, redundant, caught between the age of empires and the age of nations and were thus forced to fight their way westwards. Some came to the United States, some to England. One got away from the others and ended up in Bamble, on the coast of Norway.

This is the story of a family created by the European empires, and who paid the price for their downfall. It is the story of a family that never stops losing each other, but always manages to find each other again. More than anything, this is an account of a son searching for his father's story, and ending up rewriting his own.

In terms of genre, the work is a mixture between the documentary, the Jewish heritage epos and the post-colonial novel. Ivo de Figueiredo is influenced by authors such as W. G. Sebald, Edmund de Waal and Daniel Mendelsohn.

In A Stranger at My Table Ivo de Figueiredo shifts with remarkable audacity between the minute and the major things in life.

Ivo de Figueiredo (b. 1966) received the Brage Prize in 2002 for his biography on Johan Bernhard Hjort. In 2006 he published Henrik Ibsen. Mennesket (Henrik Ibsen. The Man) the first volume of the critically acclaimed biography about the author, followed by Henrik Ibsen. Masken (Henrik Ibsen. The Mask) in 2007. Ivo de Figueiredo has also published two critically awarded non-fiction titles for YA readers about Henrik Ibsen and Henrik Wergeland. In 2010 came Mysteriet Ingeborg Køber (The Mystery of Ingeborg Køber), and in 2014 Ord/kjøtt: Norsk Scenedramatik 1890 – 2000 (Words/Flesh: Norwegian Stage Drama 1890 – 2000).

Ivo de Figueiredo works as a critic at Morgenbladet and Aftenposten and is a member of the Norwegian Academy.

The Salon in Jerusalem (2016)

In 1881, a Christian sect from America travelled to Jerusalem. They called themselves the Overcomers and were convinced that Jesus would descend from the Mount of Olives in that same year. The Lord was long overdue. Instead, the first wave of Jewish Zionists arrived in the country. The small Christian sect grew and stayed in Jerusalem, in what became known as the American Colony.

The Salon in Jerusalem is a spectacular account of the power struggle in Palestine from the First World War until Israel became a nation state in 1948. The most violent battles were fought between the Ottoman Empire and Germany on one side and the British Commonwealth on the other. Later came the civil war between the immigrant Zionists and Palestine's Christians and Muslims. Both sides revolted against the British, who effectively ruled the country after the First World War. And parallel with all this, a secret international game was played that paved the way for the creation of the State of Israel.

With humour as well as an extraordinary academic ability to merge historical facts with first hand reporting, Tveit possesses a rare ability: he is a reporter who does not talk down to his readers. Even more valuable, he is neutral and unbiased -- on the side of those who suffers!"

The Hunt for The Red Prince (Part 1 of "De skyldige") (2015)

How Israel's wars and the Palestinians' struggle for their homeland moved to Europe and to Norway: The Hunt for The Red Prince is the true story of a bizarre mission of the Israeli intelligence service, Mossad, to assassinate one of the leading members of the PLO in a small Norwegian town in 1973. The fate of the key players in this factual account adds drama to an already dramatic backdrop, to which the author has been a personal witness on many occasions. For the first time many new letters, notes and reports of secret negotiations have been made available. Many of these documents are not found in any public archives. The book tells of the secret collaboration between a CIA-agent and one of Yassir Arafat's closest associates. The book also reveals the secret and open cooperation between Norwegians, Israelis, and Palestinians. Shakespeare's famous quote: "Misery acquaints a man with strange bedfellows" fits well into this story to describe the key characters who worked to find or destroy the path to a peaceful solution to one of history's most difficult dilemmas.

"In a never-ending, staggering march the Christian population of Eastern Thrace is jamming the roads towards Macedonia. Twenty miles of carts drawn by cows, bullocks and muddy-flanked water buffalo, with exhausted, staggering men, women and children, blankets over their heads, walking blindly along in the rain beside their worldly goods. It is a silent procession. Nobody even grunts. All they can do is keep moving."

This quotation from Ernest Hemingway is a description of events in the border zone between Turkey and Greece in September 1922. Stian Bromark's book explores the consequences of the forced migration of populations between the two countries, which Fridtjof Nansen supported. Whole towns were emptied, and 1,6 million people were forced to flee. Greeks and Turks still feel the trauma, and some of those who were directly affected are still alive.

Bromark travels through Greece and Turkey, visiting historic cities such as Istanbul, Athens, Izmir and Thessalonika. This is a travel book combined with a historic review of the Greek-Turkish conflict.

'This book is fascinatingly topical... Bromark expresses himself brilliantly, as he always does, with little glimmers of fine humour in the descriptions. This historical documentary is written in first class prose.'
Stavanger Aftenblad

'... When he is at his best, Bromark knocks the ash off the words with a knack reminiscent of Hemingway. (...) With its topics of refugee streams and nationalism, Hjemreiser is topical, important and worth reading.'

This is a different kind of world history - told through stamps from countries that have been erased from the map.

More than 1000 countries have issued their own stamps during the past 175 years since the first "Penny Black" was introduced in England in 1840. Most of them no longer exist. Some of their names will bring back associations, such as Biafra and "famine" and Bhopal and "environmental disaster." Others, few of us will associate with anything, like Labuan, Tannu Tu-va and Fiume. These lost countries have fascinating stories to tell, whether they were short-lived like Eastern Karelia, which lasted only a few weeks during the winter war of 1922, or more tenacious such as the Orange Free State, a Boer Republic which celebrated 50 years as an independent state in the late 1800s.

The book presents fifty of these countries that collapsed. The range of countries reflects different aspects of world history during the 19th and 20th centuries, with their ideologies, imperialism, struggle for resources, immigration waves and major and trivial wars. As such, the stamps with their motifs and symbols must be considered as official self-presentations. They were quite precise expressions of the ruling authorities' desired self-image, positions and ambitions, whether revolutionary or colonial. Besides stamps, the book is based on eyewitness accounts, as well as later historical analyses.

Each vanished country is presented with detailed maps and stamps.

'... packed with surprising history facts. (...) delicate graphic design. It is a beautiful, cheerful and instructive book that could easily be a winner under the Christmas trees.'

Silence in the Age of Noise. The Joy of Shutting out the World
Stillhet i støyens tid. Gleden ved å stenge verden ute

Kagge Forlag 2016
144 Pages
Complete English translation available

"Whenever I am unable to walk, climb or sail away from the world, I have learned to shut it out. Learning this took time. Only when I first understood that I had a primal need for silence, was I able to begin my search for it — and there, deep beneath a cacophony of traffic noise and thoughts, music and machinery, i-phones and snowploughs, it lay in wait for me. The silence." The author poses three questions: What is silence? Where can it be found? Why is it more important now than ever? What follows in his book are 33 attempts to answer the questions.

A personal, charming and significant book on a topic that powerfully addresses our modern times. Erling Kagge uses his extraordinary experiences to approach silence.

"Shutting out the world is not about turning your back on your surroundings, but rather the opposite: it is seeing the world more clearly, maintaining your direction and taking a stab at loving your life."

CULTURAL HISTORY

‘Do you really want to live forever?’ With this immortal lyric from the 1980’s as soundtrack, religious historian Dag Øistein Endsjø goes in search of eternal life.

The dream of immortality is possibly as old as humanity itself. One of the few things we all have in common is the knowledge that we shall all die. The alternative appears as simple as it is unachievable. Is it possible to stop our bodies from changing and to preserve them for ever? What would happen if time lost its power over us? What really distinguishes Jesus’ resurrection from the zombies who waken to life in "The Walking Dead"?

The History of Immortality will not give you the prescription for eternal life. Nor does it contain any irrefutable evidence that immortality is possible. What it does offer, however, is a wide-ranging, informative and entertaining account of humanity’s engagement with life’s most central question: What happens to us when we die, and what we might be able to do to avoid it?

Dag Øistein Endsjø (b. 1968) is Professor of Religious Studies at The University of Bergen. He researches religious topics, writes, takes part in social debate, and is an activist for human rights. His previous books have been sold to eleven countries.

Diving for Seahorses. A Book About Memory

Å dykke etter sjøhester

Genre: Non-Fiction
Category: Popular Science
Publisher: Cappelen Damm
Year: 2016
Pages: 272
English sample translation available

Take a plunge into the science of memory, together with sisters Hilde and Ylva Østby. They explore the many facets of memory and how it influences our lives, both from a neuroscience perspective and through conversations with some of the most influential memory researchers of our time. They meet people with a special kind of memory – at both ends of the memory spectrum from mnemonists, actors and taxi drivers, to amnesiacs – and discover that most memories are transformed and some are best forgotten. In the middle of winter, they send divers deep into the Oslo fjord in search of where our memories are stored. They wonder if what lies at the heart of memory is what will change our future.

Diving for Seahorses explains memory through personal and vivid tale telling, combining the best of two craftsmanships: Hilde is a novelist, and Ylva is a neuropsychologist.

'From the first page, it is clear that the Østby sisters have both a good grasp of the topic and skill in literary presentation. The text moves effortlessly between presentation of facts, interviews and reportage.'

Love as Religion. Passion and longing in the film and literature of the 2000s

Kjærlighet som religion. Lidenskap og lengsel i film og litteratur på 2000-tallet

Universitetsforlaget 2016

200 Pages

English sample translation available

“And so they lived happily ever after” – That’s how the fairy tales end. But what happiness consists of, the fairy tales do not tell us.

700-page novels do not address happy love either. They tend to deal more with jealousy, longing and conflict, misunderstandings, betrayal, suffering and sacrifice – anything other than two people living together in harmony. This does not mean that love is impossible, but rather that the writers refuse to write about a shared life that is free of problems. Happiness only seems to be suitable material for song lyrics. Fairy tales, novels and films tend instead to dwell on everything that frustrates the union, whether it all turns out well in the end, as in comedies, or badly, as in tragedies. When I was preparing this book, I therefore understood that I could not write about “love in recent films and literature”, as originally planned. I discovered that it was better to write about what the books and films actually deal with: suffering and longing, and faith and hope in love: love as religion.

Christian Refsum (b. 1962) is Professor in Comparative Literature at the University of Oslo. He has published several works, among them *Lyrikkens liv. The Search for the Soul. A Cultural History

Sjelens betydning. En kulturhistorie

Genre: Non-Fiction
Category: Cultural History
Publisher: Aschehoug
Year: 2016
Pages: 335
English sample translation available

Throughout history, the soul has been regarded as the core of the human being and as an expression of the individual's personality. Most people also feel they have one, although it is hard to explain what the soul exactly is. This is the aim of this book. By following the stages of the fateful drama of the soul from antiquity to present day, the book examines what significance it still may have in the 21st century. The historical significance of the soul has, however, been contested since the age of Enlightenment, when the scientific explanation of the world prevailed. Consequently, some people claim that the soul is reduced to a religious concept and subject to belief, while others assert that it has been replaced by the psyche of modern psychology, something irrational and subject to therapy. But this reduced significance seems contradicted by the central position the soul holds as a motif in modern literature, from Dostoyevsky and Hamsun to Virginia Woolf and John M. Coetzee. This book tells the reader how the depiction of the soul in fictional literature and the conception of it in philosophy have formed the images and stories of the soul in Western culture that we still carry with us as a palimpsest that has been imprinted on our minds.

Since we live in a multicultural global age, the conception of the soul in Buddhism and the Islam of Arabic culture is also discussed. By this actualisation, the book demonstrates how one has to understand "the other ones", the strangers, in order to understand oneself – which is the final goal of this intellectually stimulating book.

'A CULTURAL HISTORY FOR PLEASURE AND BENEFIT Høystad is a learned scholar, and uses his knowledges to something that resembles enlightenment for the public (...) the reader gets a guided tour through history, showing how the soul has been conceived. (...) he also includes chapters on the conception of the soul in Buddhism and Islam. (...) it is a relieving pleasure when academics choose to spread their knowledge in such a smooth and easily understandable way.'

In this important work, Tore Linné Eriksen presents a broad narrative about the extraordinary, tumultuous history of South Africa. Stretching from the societies that created rich and vibrant cave paintings almost 30,000 years ago, through colonisation to the free South Africa of today.

The History of South Africa has been received enthusiastically by critics, who have emphasized how it is an expert account that is simultaneously engaging due to its unadorned, accessible style and the author's obvious passion for the subject matter. Overarching historical event is juxtaposed with individuals on the ground level.

Richly illustrated with maps and photographs, timelines and fact boxes, in addition to an overview of elections, presidents and prime ministers.

Tore Linné Eriksen (b. 1945) is a historian, non-fiction writer and a professor emeritus in development studies at Oslo and Akershus University College. He has written a number of books that have won awards at national and international level.

He has been a keen observer of events in the whole of southern Africa since the 1960s, both as a researcher and participant in the anti-apartheid struggle. A combination of broad insight and vibrant enthusiasm make The History of South Africa a unique book.

An exciting cat murder tale that unravels in a fantastic seventies universe.

There are only three cars on the island. That is still one too many when one of them runs over the nicest cat in the world. Who can the murderer be? The shop owner, who swears on the life of his parents, although they are already dead? Karsten Oppihaugen, who knows more curse words than anyone else on the island? Or could it be Laila, the taxi driver no one really knows, and who has a slightly scary dog called Alex?

This is an imaginative picture book about feeling ignored. Bo the Cat was like the cat who got the cream before Viktor the Dog moved in. He takes Bo's place in the mistress's bed. The mistress used to give Bo fried bacon and cooked fish, but now she only serves liver, because that's what Viktor wants. The mistress seems to be more interested in Viktor the Dog than Bo the Cat. There's only one thing to be done, and that is to find somewhere else to live. So Bo sets out into the world to find a new home where there are no dogs.

This picture book is bursting with humour and colour, and captures how it feels to be ignored. When faced with the dangers of the big wide world, however, Bo realises how good things were at home with the dog and his mistress. A classic story with engaging illustrations.

The little red crocodile is out walking in the mist. Crocodile likes mist, and this is a really misty day! But suddenly he is scared by something that looks like a wolf, and oops! Little Crocodile is high up in a high tree.

Despite its apparent simplicity and spontaneity, on one level this picture-book is a dream-like allegory of belonging and alienation, while on a more concrete, down-to-earth level it is mostly about getting away safely from a tight corner.

Nominated for the Nordic Council Children and Young People's Literature Prize 2016.

'Aalbu communicates confidently, using humour in both the text and the pictures.'

Østlands-Posten

"This is not the first time Ragnar Aalbu has played with literary references and operated on several levels simultaneously. (...) The simple text and the clear colours are a pleasure to behold.'

The story of Mule Boy is based on the Norwegian fairy tale about "The Troll Who Had No Heart."

The king has sent six of his seven sons out into the world to find suitable princesses. The sons don't return and Mule Boy insists on finding out what has happened to his brothers. He discovers that the troll has turned his brothers and their brides into stone. He makes his way into the mountain to get hold of the troll and free the princess whom the troll has captured.

This is a charming twist on an old Norwegian fairy tale. There is a lot of humour and amusing dialogue in the book. It is dramatic and thrilling to accompany the Mule Boy into the mountain and the princess is both spunky and full of gumption. We know Mule Boy from previous books.

The illustrations are beautiful, humorous and imaginative in use of line and colour.

Winner of the Deutscher Jugendliteraturpreis 2018 for best picture book and the Norwegian Critics' Prize for Literature, Best Children's and YA Book 2015.

Finalist for the 2022 Premio Orbil in the category graphic novel.

"Torseter is an entertaining story-teller, in both words and pictures."

Dagbladet

'Curiosity, adventurousness and courage characterise the young prince (...). Curiosity is a word that can also be used when talking about Torseter himself – the result is a fantastic picture book that both children and adults will love.'

Amanda is looking forward to starting school after summer. Mainly because of Adam, who she is madly in love with, but also because she is going to be school buddy to a cute little first grader. It all becomes a bit difficult when she is told to look after Lars, the new boy in class with Downs syndrome. Amanda feels pressured: Can she be close friend to Lars and still have a chance to be popular among the cool kids in class? And how can she get Adam's attention?

Amanda gets twirled up in something she really doesn't want to be a part of: She starts shearing mean pictures of Lars. She betrays Lars and herself, and disappoints everyone. How can she get back on her feet, make things up with Lars and fix her broken reputation? It turns out to be a long and humiliating road filled with trials and selfabasement, told with large amounts of humor.

The Search for the Four-Leaf Clover Jakta på firkløveren

Samlaget 2016
326 Pages
English sample translation available

The summer holidays are here. Alvar and Jens swim with Goldie, search for four-leaf clovers, have club meetings in the tree house. In fact, they do all the fun things one can do on an island. And soon a new kid will be moving into the big old rambling house. Now they will be three – it's got to be triple fun! But when the new boy arrives, Alvar understands that the summer is going to be quite different from what he had imagined. There is jealousy, quarrels and intrigues. Alvar must find the little hero in himself, and quickly.

The Search for the Four-Leaf Clover is a warm and exiting story.
A forthcoming classic!

CHILDREN AND YOUNG ADULTS
NOVEL (SERIES)

KEPLER62

KEPLER62

WSOY (Finland) + Piggsvin forlag (Norway) 2015-2020
128 Pages

Overpopulation has caused earth's natural resources to diminish and people are struggling to survive. Thirteen-year-old Ari is looking after his little brother Joni, who has fallen ill with a mysterious virus. The boys manage to get hold of a copy of Kepler62, the newest computer game that everyone's talking about and which is supposed to be almost impossible to complete. Working together, the brothers manage the impossible and they soon discover that Kepler62 is more than just a game. It's an invitation – one that the boys will accept.

An award-winning series about a group of children who are sent away to investigate whether the distant planet Kepler62 is capable of sustaining life, because earth's resources are diminishing at an alarmingly fast rate. Their story is gripping and moves from one book to the next with cliff-hangers at the end of each instalment.

Series 1: Kepler62: 1: The Invitation (2015) 2: The Countdown (2015), 3: The Voyage (2016), 4: The Pioneers (2016), 5: The Virus (2017), 6: The Secret (2017).

Season 2: Kepler62 The New World: 1: Two Tribes (2018), 2: The Island (2019), 3: The Whisperer's Lair (2019), 4: The Cave - Due July 2020, 5: Gaia - Due September 2020.

The Voyage won the 2016 Blogistania Junior Prize

Books in the series have been nominated for the several Finnish and Norwegian prizes

"The series gets off to such a flying start that you can't help but be absorbed into its far from ordinary world."

Savon sanomat

'Parvela and Sortland bring up many themes that add depth to their dystopia, while the book is still primarily an entertaining and fast-moving novel. (...) it also draws in the kinds of kids who tend not to enjoy books. (...) After all, who doesn't love a well-written adventure?'

Lumiomena (blog)

Authors Timo Parvela from Finland and Bjørn Sortland from Norway, together with Finnish illustrator Pasi Pitkänen, have created a fascinating world where friendships are put in the balance in the unexplored reaches of outer space. These books are being published simultaneously in Finland and Norway.

Bjørn Sortland (b. 1968) is an award-winning Norwegian author whose many works include picture books as well as children's and YA novels. His books have been translated into more than 20 languages. Sortland's writing is suffused with humour, while his books also take the problems typically encountered by children and young people seriously.

YOUNG ADULT
YOUNG ADULT NOVEL

What do you do if you want to escape from yourself?

I'm someone who can never find the right words, I'm someone who freezes, I'm someone who feels rage on the point of bursting out but never does anything, just freezes or leaves, I just do a bunk, I'm so angry, I'm such a coward – so much so that I really deserve to have to suffer for it.

Vilde moves to Bristol to take a year off after high school. She leaves behind everything she has in Norway – including her boyfriend Markus. In Bristol she is drawn into the environment of the brutal martial art Krav Maga, and meets the strange, manipulative Fiona. This acquaintanceship comes to have fateful consequences, leading Vilde into a corner from which she cannot extricate herself.

An extremely sharp and well-written novel about trying to live with oneself and all one's lopsidedness.

Nominated for The Brage Prize 2016.

'It is while expounding the relational that Heidi Sævareid displays her strength. She observes human interactions with a sharp eye. Anger and despair, anxiety and mania shines brightly from the dark text. Everything is aflame then.'

Fædrelandsvennen, 5 out of 6 stars

Heidi Sævareid is a Norwegian author, translator and literary critic. Sævareid has a master in Nordic Literature from the University of Oslo. She received the Department of Culture's Debut Prize in 2013 and has been nominated for the Brage Prize three times. She lives in Bristol.

Plastic Waste in the Sea

Søppelplasten i havet

Genre: Children and Young Adults
Category: Non-Fiction
Publisher: Cappelen Damm
Year: 2016
Pages: 56
English sample translation available

People first started making plastic out of oil in a large amount in 1950. Paper and apple cores break up quickly in the sea, but plastic doesn't. We're producing more and more plastic every year. Researchers think that there are around 100 million tons of plastic floating around in the sea. This waste, which respects no national borders, is carried away by the ocean currents and distributed over the whole of the earth. In thirty years, there will be more plastic than fish in the sea if we carry on dumping at the same rate as we are now.

What can we do? The polluters are the ones who have responsibility for what they are dumping in the sea. The politicians must pass laws and regulations in their own countries and work with other countries to clean up the ocean. But we can also do a lot where we live. Researchers are working to find ways to collect up all the millions of tons that are floating out at sea. And it's urgent!

Kirsti Blom (b. 1953) is first and foremost a writer of fiction, but she also publishes non-fiction for children.

Geir Wing Gabrielsen is a researcher and biologist, and the head of the section conducting research into environmental pollution at the Norwegian Polar Institute in Tromsø. He is also a UN representative (UNEP) in the area of marine litter.
